

So this is it, then. Ejiekito was right, we shouldn't have tried to fight that statue. Maybe if we went after the eye, or led it into the hole, but it doesn't matter now. I heard him die while we fled down here. Broke my legs from the fall.

We waited too long to get out. Ardus and Selik didn't want to leave him, but he was already gone. Rocco ran out when he had the chance, but the halfling was never good with water. Waves carried him off as he left.

Tide came up while we bickered with each other, and the reefclaws got our scent when we bled in the water. Got Ardus and Selik. I'm all that's left, and I'll never make it out. Not like this.

Whoever finds this, turn back. We gave our lives looking for Ralzeros' treasure, and all we have to show for it is this broken amulet. If you're just as crazy as we were, bring that statue down. Maybe Ejiekito will find peace, somewhere.

Daling